

Did you say you were getting tired of sitting around the house all day, doing nothing?

We know. Making beds, sweeping floors, washing, ironing, and picking up after the kids isn't exactly nothing. But don't you get the feeling sometimes that another day's gone by, and what have you done for you?

Maybe you need a change. Maybe you need a Yamaha. Not a great big hulking machine that takes a P.E. major to maneuver, but a nice little Yamaha motorcycle... to get you to the dentist and back, or to the market to pick up those things you forgot, or to run down to the beach and get a little sun... before you settle down to get a little sun.

It's easy. Easier even than riding a bicycle. And gyroscopic forces actually keep a moving Yamaha very stable, so handling one is infinitely easier than it looks. Just turning the handlebars is much, much easier than maneuvering an automobile steering wheel for all the tight corners, busy streets, and driveways that you have to contend with every day.

And while you're thinking about the ease of it all, consider this: most of our motorcycles cost less than half what you would pay for an economy car. You can get up to five times as many miles to the gallon as you would with a car. And because the engineering of a Yamaha is simple, upkeep and maintenance are even simpler yet.

There are no window posts; you can see in every direction. There are no back seat drivers; it's just you, the road and your Yamaha.

We invite you to visit your nearest Yamaha dealer and talk it over. Even if you've never ridden a motorcycle before, he'll be more than happy to help.

So next time you get to feeling like you've been sitting around the house all day, doing nothing, think about a Yamaha.

It's really something.

Someday, you'll own a Yamaha.